SATURDAY NIGHT'S BLOWOUT.

A Brass Band and a Crowd Serenaded a Few People.

Saturday evening a crowd of Republicans secured the Opera House band, and forming at the INTELLIGENCER office, marched about the city and serenaded a few prominent Republicans. The fact is, so many Republicans were out of the city that there were but a limited number who could be called on. As was remarked in the INTELLIGENCER Saturday morning, it was not intended to have any style about the blow-out, but simply to have a good time over the nomination of Harrison and Reid.

There was a dense mass of people in front of the INTELLIGENCER office, and after several appropriate airs, lots of red fire, much noise of fox horns and American tin bill whistles, and enthusiastic cheers for the nominee, the line of march was taken up, without any formality of organization, and led by Mr. John Frew, Mr. T. C. Moffat, Mr. W. M. O. Dawson and fourteen other enthusiastic Republicans, who presented a solid front, sixteen abreast across the street, the crowd proceeded to the residence of Hon. Augustus Pollack, on Main street, where after music by the band, there were loud cries of "Pollack."

In response to these cries Mr. Pollack at length appeared at a window and addressed the monster assemblage.

MR. POLLACK'S REMARKS.

"REPUBLICANS, FELLOW-CITIZENS, FRIENDS—Every occasion of public acclamation in the history and conclusions of national conventions stirs the heart of loyal Americanism. The acceptance of the decision of the majority of the representatives of the party vindicates the devotion of Republicans and of Americanism to the perpetuation of free government. (Cheers.)"

"The struggle of a presidential nomination is a patriotic duty, and to its patriotic obligations to the principles and to the cause of Republicanism, but the loyal allegiance to the grand traditions of the party, and to its aims towards the prosperity and happiness of the American people, survives the interest in the individualism of the contest, and it is a source of patriotic gratification to recognize in the closing column of Republicanism the most ardent devotion to the grandest exponent of Americanism and Republicanism—of diplomacy and reciprocity—James B. Cairns, (cheers.)"

"The American protective system—McKinley and Reid. (Cheers.) Yield all differential opinions to the patriotic sentiment of the Union, the presidential nomination of the Minneapolis convention and proclaim the renomination of Gen. Benjamin Harrison. (cheers) not only a merited vindication of the party, patriotic and American, of his administration of the government, but that his election and that of the great moulder of public opinion, William Reid (cheers) as President and Vice President of the United States is confidently asserted by the grand party which is devoted to the protection of American industry, sound currency and the prosperity of the American people." (Cheers.)

After the cheering which followed this had subsided, the line was again formed, and the crowd marched to the stirring music of the excellent band up Main street to the residence of

MR. C. B. HART.

Mr. Hart had not returned from Minneapolis, but his family was serenaded, anyhow. The ladies waved handkerchiefs, and the crowd, which packed the street from curb to curb, gave three rousing cheers and a tiger for Mr. Hart.

The line then counter-marched on Main to Tenth street, on Tenth to Market, and down Market to Twentieth. At several places red fire was burned, rockets shot off and other pyrotechnics resorted to by residents along the line. Everywhere the dense masses of people along the line greeted the procession with cheers and waving handkerchiefs. Even the Register, which, with its customary partiality, seeks to belittle the demonstration, is forced to comment on the enthusiasm as the procession passed through the crowded streets.

The route lay up Twentieth to Chapline, and down Chapline. The lack of formal organization was there shown, the head of the procession having turned down Chapline street before the band had reached Twentieth, and the noise of the fox horns in the mass of people between, prevented those in the front ranks from hearing the music.

It was marvelous the way the crowd evolved new campaign cries, or adopted old ones. "Four, four, four years more!" was yelled in unison much of the way. "Harrison, Harrison, he's the man!" was another cry. On Chapline street the first stop was made at the residence of and after a piece by the band, Mr. Whitaker was called out and made a brief but happy speech.

Mr. Riley, of Buffalo, N. Y., a business man who was in the city and joined the line, also made a little speech which was enthusiastically received. He said he had been an enthusiastic Blaine man, but now he was a still more enthusiastic Harrison man, and he hoped to see West Virginia in the Republican column this year.

After another air by the band, the crowd marched down a little farther to the residence of T. C. Moffat and J. K. Hall. Mr. Moffat had been obliged to leave the line to attend to his duties as chairman of the Republican county committee in receiving the returns from the primaries, and Mr. Hall was at Minneapolis, but their families were serenaded and three cheers given for T. C. Moffat, the next sheriff.

The party then went to the residence of Dr. H. B. Baguley, president of the Sixth ward Republican club, and after music he also made a little speech of congratulation and encouragement.

After cheering the Doctor, the line marched back by way of Chapline, Twentieth and Market street, to Fourteenth and to the INTELLIGENCER office, where after more music, red fire and cheering, the crowd disbanded.

To those who suggested the turnout it was a success beyond what was expected. It was like one of "Old Bill" Gibson's speeches—there wasn't much system about it but it was full of fire and enthusiasm.

MR. W. B. ALLISON, proprietor of the wire works, has wrought a pleasing change in the grim old premises at the corner of Eoff and Seventeenth streets, that with painting the house and out-buildings and placing a new wire fence around it, with the green sod and ornaments of his trade the place is now a thing of beauty.

THE Young Men's Gymnasium Club of Benwood had their first excursion yesterday, going to New Martinsville on the boat, C. W. Batchelor. The day was spent in general amusements and nothing that could shock the conscience of the most reverent was allowed.

About 300 people participated, and all united in the verdict that it was the most orderly and best managed affair they had ever attended. The young men are justly proud of the fact that while many excursions from that town have been occasions of rowdiness, this one was free from criticism in that direction and reflected honor on the club and all who participated in the outing.

WHEELING, June 11, 1892.

To the Trades and Labor Assembly.

GENTLEMEN:—I have the honor to transmit to your honorable body, to take such action as you may deem best, the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted by the Farmers' Alliance and Industrial Union of Ohio county at the April meeting, viz:

Resolved, That we will not support any candidate for the Legislature who will not publicly declare his opposition to the election of any man to the United States Senate who is interested in the continuance and growth of monopolies and trusts.

By order of the legislative committees of the Trades and Labor Assembly and Farmers' Alliance and Industrial Union.

Fraternally yours,

T. M. GARVIN, secretary.

This motion was laid on the table for two weeks, on motion of Mr. Dohler.

A communication was read from President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, requesting all trades assemblies to act in co-operation to keep the World's Fair open on Sundays, and to petition with the signatures of all members, the congressmen of this district to prevent Congress exceeding its powers to undertake to legislate upon a question of this character, as that was the best day for wage workers to attend the fair.

On motion of Mr. Boes the assembly endorsed the communication and ordered the legislative committee to procure more copies, to be signed by all local councils, to be forwarded through the general assembly. All present expressed their sentiment in favor of keeping the fair open and attached their signatures.

A communication was received from President Gompers, stating that the boycott on the Ehlers brewing company, of New York, was still in force, and asking the co-operation of the Assembly. A resolution re-endorsing the boycott was passed.

Prof. Vincent was to have delivered an address in the Assembly hall last night on the combine with the Farmer's Alliance, but owing to illness failed to arrive in time and the meeting was postponed.
